COPENHAGEN BRIDGE INVITATIONAL IV

Editors: Mark Horton and Christina Lund Madsen

January 21st 2017

Junior Domination

After 7 out of 19 rounds in the Copenhagen Bridge Invitational, Ola and Mikael Rimstedt have taken the lead with 611 imps ahead of Tom Hanlon-Vincent Demuy.

Demuy-Hanlon have been leading most of the day and began the event with a knock out of Zia-Gromov, who are still slowly recovering.

Third is Sabine Auken and Roy Welland, and last... well, we normally don't talk about it, but since they won the event in 2015, we hope they don't mind us teasing them a bit...

The Radisson Blu Scandinavian IMP Pairs is led by Gunn Tove Vist-Torild Heskje from Norway (they are not junior but look so), ahead of Swedes Peder Skaj-Simon Ekenberg (also a junior).

The IMP Pairs finished with a wine tasting for all participants hosted by Mikael Warberg from Frederiksberg Vinimport/Sæsonvine, a participant himself.

Long weekend

English celebrity chef Richard 'Rick' Stein OBE is a restaurateur and television presenter. He is Head Chef and co-owner of Rick Stein at Bannisters at Mollymook, New South Wales, Australia, and owns four restaurants in Padstow, a fish and chip shop in Falmouth, Cornwall and fish and chip shops in Porthleven and Newquay, Cornwall. Luckily for your editor he recently opened a restaurant in Marlborough, just a short drive from my village.

His most recent series for the BBC is Long Weekends, in which he embarks on a series of culinary long weekends in search of food excellence and brilliant recipes, heading to markets, restaurants, wineries, cafes and bars. Just a few days before this year's invitational he visited Copenhagen (an ideal spot for a long weekend - but then you already knew that!). During his trip he cooked fried pork belly with lovage potatoes and parsley sauce - voted Denmark's favourite dish. You can see the programme at:

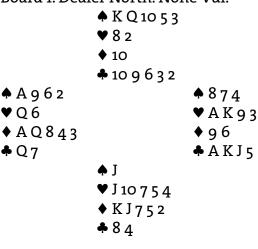

http://www.bbc.co.uk/programmes/bo83bzx2 - but be quick it runs out in 22 days!

Just before we turn to the first session of the Invitational a question - what is Denmark's favourite bridge event?

Any hopes the players may have entertained for a quiet start were quickly brushed aside:

What a nasty problem for East.

He knew that 2 would probably be going down, but his side might be being robbed. North led the king of spades and declarer won with the ace, crossed to dummy with a club, played a diamond to the queen and cashed the ace of diamonds, getting the bad news. he unblocked the queen of clubs, cashed the queen of hearts and crossed to dummy with a heart to play a club. South ruffed with the seven and although declarer could overruff he could not avoid the loss of three tricks, one down, -50.

North's intervention on the second round reminds me of the famous dentistry scene from Marathon Man, where the character played by Laurence Olivier keeps asking Dustin Hoffman 'Is it safe?' Well, as you can see 2\(\Phi\) doubled was not at all safe.

East led the ace of clubs and switched to a trump. West took the ace, cashed the queen of clubs and switched to the queen of hearts and a heart, East winning, cashing the king of clubs and switching to the nine of diamonds for the king and ace. That gave the defenders the first seven tricks and had West now continued with the queen of diamonds declarer would have been four down. His trump return allowed declarer to 'escape' for -500.

With a six card suit North felt entitled to show the queen of hearts, but it put his side overboard. East cashed the ace of diamonds and West followed with the three. When East continued with the king of diamonds declarer could claim, +1430.

I'll leave you to ponder that one, but given declarer had promised a singleton diamond should West have followed with the jack at trick one as suit preference signal?

After a couple of cue bids North asked for key cards and signed off when South showed only one, +650.

As the players took their seats for the second match I noticed that the leading pair was Hanlon-Demuy with +349 IMPs - good choice by the organisers!

North led the queen of clubs (whenever I do this dummy has K10x and declarer Ax) and declarer won in hand, pitching a diamond from dummy and played a spade. West went up with the ace and switched to the three of diamonds and South cashed the king and ace and exited with the five of clubs. Declarer ruffed in dummy, pitched a diamond on the king of spades and played the ten of spades. South had to ruff else declarer would pitch a club, play a heart to the ten, ruff a club and repeat the heart finesse, but declarer could overruff, ruff a club, play a heart to the queen, ruff a club and claim, +620.

It was hard for North to find a diamond lead at trick one, but had he withheld the ace of spades at trick two, declarer has too much to do. If he tries to play a cross ruff South can pitch a club on the third round of spades. If he plays a partial cross ruff and then exits with a diamond, North can win and play a trump, leaving declarer a trick short.

Although 3NT can be made in theory, it would not be easy to take the right view in clubs when you know that North has nine cards in the majors.

You would have more chance if the auction started 1♥-1NT-2♥ - maybe thta is what happened at the two table where +400 was recorded (worth 71 IMPs).

South led the jack of spades and declarer won with the ace, cashed the king of clubs and played a club to the ace as South pitched the five of diamonds. He cashed the king of spades and ducked a heart to North, who cashed the queen of clubs and exited with the queen of diamonds for the king and ace. That left declarer one trick short, -50.

West led the queen of diamonds and declarer won with dummy's ace and played a heart to the ten and jack. Now West switched to the nine of spades, but when declarer played dummy's king East ducked (strange after South's 2.). A second heart resolved the situation in that suit and declarer lost only to the major suit aces for +420. Suppose West cashes the ace of hearts before switching to a spade? Do you have an agreement about the meaning of North's double? Here the commentator suggested it asked South to lead his weaker major. Some partnerships play it as requesting a specific suit (frequently spades, although in one of my partnerships it asked for a diamond).

South led the two of spades, and declarer ducked, won the next spade, cashed the ace of diamonds and played a diamond to the ten - two down,-500.

The side event at the Copenhagen Bridge Invitational is well underway.

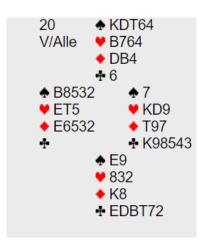

No less than 94 pairs are participating and on the first day of the qualifying this hand was dealt.

Lise-Lotte Nielsen og Allan Laursen were sitting NS against Morten Vanderbilde, as he is known as in Denmark after his remarkable win in the Vanderbilt with his son, Dennis. Dennis used to known as the son of Morten; today Morten is known as Dennis' father.

Sadly Dennis Bilde had to play a tournament in Australia with his Italian Lazavva-team and had to cancel his participation in the main event, but we have his father to comfort all the opponents he faces.

Morten Bilde experimented with the tactical approach of trying to get his opponents in trouble.

Unimpressed by the Danish National Team Player, Laursen doubled and Nielsen hapily passed.

The lead was ace of spades, and when the smoke was gone opponents had taken 800. So much for experimenting.

The Qualification is led by the fierce Norwegian women Gunn Tove Vist and Torild Heskje in front of Peder Skaj-Simon Ekenbeg from Sweden.

Best Danish pair is the only 20 and 15-year olds Victor Todd-Moir and Søren Bune in 7th.

Everyone was at their best on Thursday Night, and we are happy to see so many maintain a fine dress code on friday as well.

This and That By christina Lund Madsen

The New Boss

Charlotte Fuglsang is the new CEO of the Danish Bridge Federation. She started January 2nd in the eye of the CBI-storm. Not even a bridge player, Charlotte has fought to become acquainted with both bridge and the amazing people within the environment.

If you see her, you are welcome to say hi to her - and you can even give her a bridge hand. She took a one-day course in Blaksets Bridgecenter, and already got annoyed at her partner, so bridge is definitely something for her!

Participants from afar

In the Radisson Blu Scandinavia IMP Pairs we have participants from all over the world. The Norwegians are dominating with 391/2 pair (the half is quite important as I made a bet with Geir Helgemo and Tor Helness about whether there would be 40 pairs. I would have lost a lot of money had we included the two Norwegian pairs in the main event...)

Denmark is the second-largest nation, and then we have pairs from Sweden, England, the US and other countries.

Mona Alzaben and Ayman Azzam come from Jordan/Egypt. They heard about the event and checked out the website and decided to go see The Little Mermaid. They were slightly disappointed meeting me instead.

We took them aside for a piture, but Ayman didn't want to pose as he hadn't shaved! As we told him it was no problem as nobody would be looking at him...

Mark Horton has been fired

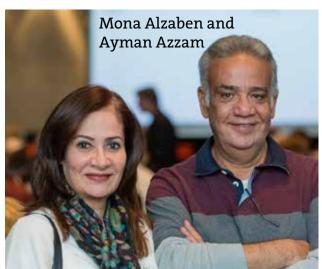

It didn't take my co-editor Mark Horton many seconds after arrival to get in trouble. Meike Wortel came up to me with the words: "Christina, I am sorry, but you have to fire Mark Horton."

"Whyever?" I replied.

"He just asked me when I am due," Meike said.

Her son is nine weeks old.

(In Mark's defense, his knowledge of women is rather limited. He has only been married four times.)

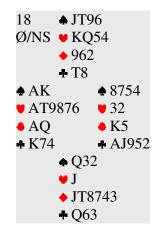

The Operator By Charles

Two years ago our popular BBO Operator Jan EDB Nielsen was wrong sided at the BBO table playing in the PRO-AM with Alfredo Versace. We saw the two exiting games in the bulletin.

This year Jan had the pleasure of Jean-Christophe Quantin in the PRO-AM. They never reached the BBO table, but Jan told mee about this deal.
